In addition to baccalaureate degree seeking students, the Foundation accepts scholarship applications for craft or certificate programs. All scholarship applicants must be a high school senior or college undergraduate enrolled in and pursuing an undergraduate or associate degree, or an electric utility position certificate at a college with the intent to enter the electric energy industry. Applicants must be a U.S. citizen.

Applicants must fill out a scholarship application, which can be downloaded from the RMEL Foundation web site at <http://www.rmel.org/foundation/foundationsscholarships.cfm>. Also required in the application process is a short essay of goals and aspirations. All requirements and instructions are included on the application. The completed application, along with the necessary documents must be submitted to the RMEL office at: 7009 S. Potomac St Ste 109, Centennial, Colorado 80112.

Recipients are chosen by the RMEL Foundation selection committee based on goals and aspiration in the electric energy industry, motivation to succeed, service to community and school, and academic ability. Students from all parts of the RMEL service territory are encouraged to apply.

For more information about the scholarship process, please contact Ed Blum via email at edblum@rmel.org or phone at 303-865-5544.

The RMEL Foundation was incorporated on May 5, 1999 and received its 501(c) 3, IRS non-profit, tax-deductible status on March 3, 2000. The RMEL Foundation's purpose is exclusively for the charitable and educational purposes of awarding scholarships to deserving and qualified students in engineering or curriculum related to the utility industry.
